Lessons learned as a Pathfinder Coordinator

4. . Don't waste time on tools left behind. Many times we dwell on things left at home that would have made the job easier when we should be focusing on what the locals would do and what God has made available.

There are many times in our life when we wished we had done something differently. God wants us to learn from our mistakes and many times He uses them in our witness to others.

AIM Construction Team

On July 10th, nineteen Construction AIM'ers coordinated by Mike made their way to the Havasupai land in the bottom of the Grand Canyon. The team performed many tasks in the canyon one of these was building a 15 X 15 storage building to create space for a pavilion church to be built this fall.

The team hiked eight miles from the Rim of the canyon to their campsite. They slept in tents and bathed in the river. Let's just say many experienced things they had never done before.

The team also repaired windows, steps, yards, and worked with the children in the school during the heat of the day (110 +).

Wednesday night the team assisted Missionary Bill Easter with the church service by providing music and special singing. Even some of the tourist hikers stopped in for church that night. It was the largest service to date for the A/G. There was a great move of the Holy Spirit during the altar call that evening.

On their free day they visited the Havasupai, Mooney, and Navajo Falls.

AIM continued:

These are some of the most beautiful sites in our country. They ended their trip with a never-forgettable helicopter flight out of the canyon. All arrived safely back home and hopefully looking forward to the next time.

Newport, Ky.

Pathfinders respond quickly to a need in Newport, Ky. Former pathfinder Steve Brewer called and gave us a desperate need of the ladies of his intercity church in the Cincinnati area. They wanted to expand the feeding ministry of their church to the homeless and start an after school feeding program. Their present kitchen was on 7 X 17 and in a high traffic area of the church. After making a site visit, we called on a few more pathfinders and in five days we tripled the size of the kitchen with new walls, ceiling, and flooring. The church was overwhelmed and Pastor Leonard said that new life was added to the church by the example of these laborers. Thanks to Joe Taunton, Larry Wanamaker, Steve Barnes, Steve Brewer, George Smith and Mike King.
